

SPECIAL DELEGATIONS HEAR BILLY SUNDAY PREACH AND 155 PENITENTS HIT 'TRAIL'

Converts, Slow in Starting Down Aisle, Later Rush Forward as Preacher's Call; Midland Shop Men, College Girls and Others Swell Sunday's List

Abruptly breaking off his sermon last night, Billy Sunday launched into one of his peculiar but intensely gripping prayers. Then without a word or pause to signify the end of the prayer he suddenly raised his voice and hurried forth into the silence of the great tabernacle his invitation:

"Will you come? Will you come?"

The audience had remained seated. Not a person stirred, though the big crowd was exactly on the balance—ward would have sent it one way or the other.

"Will you come without some one asking you personally?" the evangelist earnestly queried.

Still no one moved.

"You Midland men, you business women, you Brown's Business college, you Central Business college, you South Side—won't you come?" He pleaded, arms outstretched, his every muscle quivering with his great desire to bring hundreds to God.

But no delegation stirred.

Woman First to Go Forward.

Then, from no one knows where, a middle-aged woman appeared suddenly in front of the platform.

"Thank you, thank you," the evangelist said, heartily grasping her hand.

"I should think hundreds of you would pour down the aisles with me to get something with Christ," she said, and again begged and pleaded and urged them to come.

Then, the personal workers began pouring in to the audience. The choir part was left empty. Everywhere throughout the big auditorium, went the army of the Lord. Sinners began coming to the altar of repentance singly and in groups of two or three. So they came for perhaps three minutes. Meanwhile workers were among the Midland, Brown's Business college, and business women, delegations. They urged, they pleaded, they argued, they demanded in the name of God, they did everything in their power to break down the barriers erected by the sinners.

Billy Sunday was standing on the platform, now extending his invitation in pantomime, the noise of many voices in the tabernacle having made speech almost impossible. He stretched out his arms, the expressions which

Federals' Position Strong and Artillery Battle Is Certain

TORREON, Coahuila, Mexico, June 17.—Gen. Panfilo Natera, commander of the new central division, will arrive here tonight from the front above Zacatecas to discuss with General Villa the military situation. While in this city Natera will be the guest of General Villa.

General Villa announced today that so far he has been able to send 8,500 men toward Zacatecas. The condition of the railroad has been extremely bad owing to recent heavy rains, and the troop trains have been obliged virtually to pick their way over the soaked roadbed. The commander of the northern division hopes to have the rest of his forces in the proximity of Zacatecas within the next few days. The artillery brigade commanded by Gen. Felipe Angeles left today for the scene of operations. The troops are in the best spirit, said General Villa today. In view of the fact that he has ample ammunition and provisions, he anticipates a high degree of efficiency on the part of his men.

Federals Have 15,000 Men.

It was learned today that the federal force at Zacatecas numbers between 12,000 and 15,000 men. More reinforcements, said to have been part of the Saltillo garrison, have reached there during the latter part of the week. The latest information is that the force at Zacatecas at the beginning of June numbered less than 4,000, but that about 8,000 men arrived on June 9, and that another 4,000 or more came to the assistance of Gen. Medina Barron during the latter part of last week.

In addition to a great number of machine guns, estimates run from 125 to 150, the federals have in position several large field pieces. Access to the city is possible for an army only through two narrow valleys, defended by redoubts and entrenchments on and near the base of the three hills commanding the city. Unless the Constitutional artillery succeeds in taking some of the redoubts and trenches, many lives will be lost in the assaults on the positions.

T.R. HAS THROAT TROUBLE; NOT TO MAKE SPEECHES

SPECIALIST'S ADVICE IS TAKEN BY COLONEL

'I Cannot Enter Campaign This Fall That Is Certain,' He Tells Press

LONDON, June 17.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt is suffering from an affection of the larynx as a direct result of the hardships he endured in his recent Brazilian trip, which will effectually prevent him from taking part as an actor in the political campaign in the United States this fall and compel him to exercise the greatest care for some months to come.

"This is my answer to those who wanted me to go into a campaign," said Colonel Roosevelt today in describing the condition of his throat. "If anyone expected me to do so, I cannot now."

The announcement of the ex-president's disability was made after he had paid a visit to Sir St. Clair Thomson, professor of laryngology and physician for diseases of the nose and throat in King's college hospital, a specialist whom he had consulted when he was in London in 1910.

The ex-president's doctor, Dr. Thomson, said that the condition of the larynx was such that the ex-president would be unable to speak in public for some time. He said that the condition was the result of the strain of the Brazilian trip, which Colonel Roosevelt's voice gave him much trouble during the lecture, which was apparent to all in the theater, and toward the end much huskiness developed. For this reason he visited the physician today.

Orders Are Absolute.

Dr. Thomson, after a thorough examination, pronounced the verdict that Colonel Roosevelt must not attempt to speak in the open air or indulge in extended speechmaking under any circumstances for several months. He said that the condition was the result of the strain of the Brazilian trip, which Colonel Roosevelt's voice gave him much trouble during the lecture, which was apparent to all in the theater, and toward the end much huskiness developed. For this reason he visited the physician today.

Not Neutral.

"There is no reason for further concealment of the difference which has arisen between the American and Mexican delegations to which the press has already referred, over the provisional government for Mexico, which is at present under consideration. The Mexican delegation, adopting a principle advanced by the mediating plenipotentiaries, agreed to the designation as provisional president of a neutral. The American delegation submitted its plan based on the condition that the provisional president shall be a Constitutionalist, a condition which the Mexican delegation flatly rejected, of its own accord without even consulting its government. To put in writing the reasons for the rejection so that they might be studied by the American delegates, the Mexican delegation addressed to them the memorandum mentioned. The chief considerations of which are the following:

"In a country unused to electoral functions such as Mexico and particularly in the circumstances and conditions it would be in, once the revolution had ceased, a provisional government composed of revolutionaries and with revolutionaries in authority throughout the country, would turn the elections as it wished. The public vote would be falsified and the result would necessarily be the election of another revolutionary. Consequently when the Washington government insists today on the designation of a Constitutionalist as provisional president it favors also, from today the imposition of a revolutionary president at the elections."

"Attitude Is Bad for All."

"Such an attitude," said the revolutionaries, "for the chief of the revolution, who will doubtless also be its candidate. Bad for the two countries because it will create a national sympathy of hostility in the Mexican people, when a sympathetic approachment between them and the United States should be striven for, had for Carranza and his party, because public opinion in Mexico, whose susceptibility in the matter is well-known, to them would either accuse them of having brought about the intervention of a foreign nation to enable them to achieve power, and of wielding an authority submissive to a foreign government."

"In the United States and in some European countries, the influence of the government in power on elections is slight, if any. In Latin-American countries it is usually decisive and a product of a revolutionary government, which believes in its right to power by conquest, a revolutionary government does not hesitate to set aside all law to trample on the public will. In Mexico is the present circumstance any?"

MARTIN ANNOUNCES

Ruth Laughlin Helps Noted Archaeologists Excavate Ancient Temple

To a Colorado college girl, Miss Ruth Laughlin, a graduate of the class of 1911, goes the honor of being the first white woman to penetrate the heart of the mountains of Central America, into the oldest Indian civilization on the continent. Miss Laughlin lives in Santa Fe, N. M., and she returned there yesterday after a four-month trip with an expedition of the American Institute of Archaeology, headed by Director Edgar L. Hewett.

A 200-mile trip on muleback through almost inaccessible mountains ranging from 6,000 to 15,000 feet in height, was one of the feats of Miss Laughlin.

She was of material assistance to the archaeologists in the excavation of an ancient temple near Quirigua and in the work of unearthing and taking plaster casts of monoliths to be exhibited at the San Diego exposition.

Miss Laughlin, who is a popular society leader in Santa Fe, is the daughter of Judge and Mrs. N. B. Laughlin, old residents of this city.

HUERTA'S MEN ALLEGED U.S. IS AIDING FRAUD

Constitutionalist as Head of Proposed Government Is Cause of Trouble

WILL NOT ACCEDE TO PLAN

Deny Right to Name Any but Neutral Person; Fear for Election

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., June 17.—The Huerta delegation to the mediation conference issued a statement tonight charging that the insistence by the United States on a Constitutionalist provisional president was tantamount to abetting and even exacting fraud and violence at the elections.

The publication of this statement was unexpected by the American delegates. When they learned of it their attitude was that the Huerta delegates were acting entirely within their rights when they criticized the American plan for establishment of a provisional government in a communication addressed to the Americans themselves, but they were greatly surprised by the Mexican delegates' action in giving it out.

Justice Lamar and Mr. Lehmann read the statement issued by the Mexican delegation and determined to make public their reply. This will be given out tomorrow.

The Mexican statement outlines the substance of a memorandum, dated June 12, which the Huerta delegates gave to the American delegation, and to which the latter have since replied.

The preface of the statement explained that the publication tonight was made because of the knowledge that criticism already had reached representatives of the press. The statement was in part as follows:

"There is no reason for further concealment of the difference which has arisen between the American and Mexican delegations to which the press has already referred, over the provisional government for Mexico, which is at present under consideration. The Mexican delegation, adopting a principle advanced by the mediating plenipotentiaries, agreed to the designation as provisional president of a neutral. General Carranza and General Villa failed to deny today that their relations had reached a breaking point. The employee of the Juarez customs house, telegraph office and treasury department sent south early today on a special train, will be sent to Saltillo, according to announcement tonight by Roberto Pesqueira, Carranza's confidential agent here. Other reports said that they had been placed in the state penitentiary at Chihuahua City. The reported sending of the prisoners to Carranza's headquarters was regarded by agents of both factions here as a sarcastic action by the Villa agent. It was not denied from any source that Villa's soldiers had taken over the entire fabric of civil government here, formerly manipulated by Carranza's cabinet officers.

A statement issued early today by a Villa agent here to the effect that his chief had authorized him to issue a general denial of the reported estrangement, was found later to have been made without authority. Personnel of both Villa and Carranza, who were eager to prevent the general impression caused by the display of armed force at Juarez, busied themselves unsuccessfully during the day in attempting to get an official expression from Coahuila, where Carranza has established himself, and from Torreon, where Villa evidently remained.

The employees of the Juarez customs house, telegraph office and treasury department sent south early today on a special train, were reported as having been placed by Villa's officers in the state penitentiary at Chihuahua City. H. Perez Abreu, who was in charge of the Constitutionalist information bureau, disappeared with the rest. Alberto Pani, Carranza's agent in charge of the treasury department at Juarez, escaped to this side, according to reports.

Circus Information

The Sells-Floto-Buffalo Bill circus will give two performances in Colorado Springs today on the West Huertano street grounds. The afternoon performance will start at 2 o'clock and the evening show at 8 o'clock. Doors will open one hour before each performance.

The parade will start from the show grounds at 10:30 o'clock this morning, passing through the downtown section. The advance seat sale will be held at the Buoy Corner Drug store.

1,000 PASSENGERS IN DANGER WHEN STEAMERS CRASH

KAISER WILHELM II HIT IN BRITISH CHANNEL

Dense Fog Causes Collision; Both Badly Damaged; Details Tracking

SOUTHAMPTON, England, June 17.—The North German-Lloyd steamer Kaiser Wilhelm II, which left Southampton shortly after noon today bound for New York with a thousand passengers, lies at anchor tonight off Netley, three miles to the southeast, with a big hole in her side amidships, caused by a collision with the Liverpool grain steamer Incornore, bound from a Black sea port for Antwerp.

The Incornore, a much smaller craft than the German steamer, of 3,000 odd tons, is in dock here with her bows badly smashed.

The collision occurred in the English channel, 12 miles south of the Nab lightship in a dense fog. Just how it occurred and on which vessel lies the responsibility cannot be ascertained at present. The officers of the Kaiser Wilhelm II have permitted no communications to be held with anyone on board, and they themselves refuse to give out any information.

Such scant details as have been obtained come from the Incornore. That vessel is stated by those on board, had virtually come to a stop because of the danger of continuing under way in such a thick fog, when suddenly there loomed up just ahead of her the huge bulk of the Kaiser Wilhelm.

Hole Above Waterline.

Both captains did their best to avoid a collision, but the short distance separating the two vessels rendered their efforts ineffectual and the Incornore struck the liner on the starboard side amidships. The force of the impact crumpled up her own bows and tore a big gap in the Kaiser Wilhelm's side. It was the impression of those on board the Incornore that the hole was entirely above the waterline. The two steamers stood by each other until it was ascertained that neither needed immediate assistance, then both started slowly for Southampton.

The forepeak of the Incornore rapidly filled with water but the stout bulkhead confined it there and, although so much down by the bows that the propeller was half out of the water, she managed to crawl into port. There it was found that the damage to the bows extended for a length of 12 feet and a width of 10 feet.

VILLA RESIGNS AND REBEL FORCES ARE SPLIT; MEXICO FACES SERIOUS SITUATION

Washington Officials Worried by News of Estrangement of Leaders; Americans in War Zone Insist That Intervention Is the Only Remedy Left to Settle Difficulty

Summary of Yesterday's Mexican Developments

Villa resigns as commander and open break with Carranza forces is admitted.

Both sides attempt to get leaders together to save cause of Constitutionalists.

Internal strife will not prevent attack on Zacatecas, claim rebels.

Federals will make last stand and are prepared for heavy siege.

Huerta's envoys at A B C peace conference claim United States is not neutral and that selection of Constitutionalist will be an aid to fraud in election.

Official Washington stirred by reports of split and officials on border claim that only armed intervention is left to settle revolution.

Villa confiscates $1,000,000 in Carranza currency and fiat money drops in value.

More diplomatic trouble expected because of aid given Constitutionlists when gunboat was destroyed in Tampico harbor.

Spaniards, expelled by Villa, will be allowed to return to their homes at Torreon.

Villa's officers revolt with him and refuse offers to accept any terms from Carranza envoys.

Disastrous attack on Zacatecas, in which Villa's authority was superseded by Carranza, real cause of split in forces.

Huerta to issue call for extra session of Mexican congress.

General Angeles, United States' choice for head of temporary government, slated to succeed Villa in command of division. Villa said to agree to this.

Arms still being shipped to rebels from foreign ports.

Constitutionalist envoys in Washington refuse to talk on situation.

Secretary of State Bryan remains quiet on new developments.

WASHINGTON, June 17.

That General Villa had determined upon a break with Carranza and had demonstrated his attitude by imprisoning some officers in the first Constitutionalist chief's command, was verified in reports to the state department today. It was declared here, however, that Villa's action had served the purpose for which it was originated, and the conqueror of Torreon and Saltillo would command the military advance against Huerta from this time without interruption.

The internal dispute in the Mexican revolutionary ranks while mediation at Niagara Falls rested, had stirred officials here. But a message from Consul Edwards served to relieve anxiety. Other official dispatches received were to the effect that all the principal officers of the revolutionary movement sided with Villa in his difference with the Constitutionalist first chief over methods of procedure in the military campaign and that Carranza had agreed that Villa should take supreme command in the military operations against the Huerta government.

All of the military officers under Villa, including General Felipe Angeles, his chief of artillery and prominently mentioned as a candidate for provisional president of Mexico, were declared to have stood by Villa in his demonstrative revolt.

According to the official dispatches, the difference between Carranza and Villa arose over the attack upon Zacatecas. General Carranza it was stated, insisted that General Natera should lead the assault and mapped-out plans which Villa did not support. Villa insisted, according to reports, that the leader of the Constitutionalist forces was being influenced by ambitious politicians in the revolutionary movement, and determined that the only way to meet the situation was to resign his commission as chief of the military forces in northern Mexico.

Officers All Revolt.

Carranza then is said to have yielded and to have restored Villa to his command, with instructions to proceed. Significant in this connection were reports reaching here of additional shipments of arms via foreign ports to the Constitutionalist forces at Tampico.

Immediately following his restoration to command at the station in northern Mexico, General Villa is declared to have ordered the imprisonment of men who had stirred up trouble between himself and Carranza. Official dispatches to the Washington government made no mention of this, but the agents of General Carranza here are said to understand the situation thoroughly, and in some official quarters the action of Villa was commended.

This turn in events also was regarded as emphasizing the prominence and ability of General Angeles, whose name has been sanctioned by the United States as one of the available men for provisional president of Mexico if mediation can bring results.

Bryan Is Silent Again.

Before Consul Edwards' dispatch was received the state department was

FILMS TAKEN HERE DESTROYED IN FIRE

Reels by Romaine Fielding Will Have to Be Acted Again Before Camera

Fire at the Lubin studios in Philadelphia last Saturday destroyed all but two of the films which Romaine Fielding and the other actors for the Lubin company have made during their stay in this city, and the movie people will have to re-enact the plays if the pictures are to be presented at all. Fielding and his associates have come to this conclusion, although matters at the Philadelphia studio have been quiet since the fire, and little definite information concerning the extent of the disaster has reached them.

The fire Saturday destroyed a one-story building in which practically all the films made by the Lubin company since its organization, and films belonging to some other companies, were stored. It began with an explosion, caused probably by spontaneous combustion, and burned 3,000 reels of film. No insurance was carried on the stock, and the loss on the films alone, it was given out last night at the Fielding studio, the Hagerman house, will be more than $1,000,000.

Reels Made Here Destroyed.

Fielding has sent to Philadelphia during his stay here seven single-reel comedies and one two-reel drama. Of well balanced government can guarantee electoral freedom, so that the reelection of the neutral government proposed by the mediators is tantamount to setting and even to exacting fraud and violence at the elections.

HUERTA'S MEN SAY U. S. IS AIDING ELECTION FRAUD

"Nation Not With Rebels"

"The American delegation draws an illogical inference when it says that the rebel successes show that the nation is with them. The central and eastern states of the republic, which have a total population of over 10,000,000 inhabitants, are not under rebel control. Of those, Guanajuato, Jalisco, Puebla, Vera Cruz, Mexico, and Oaxaca alone have over seven millions. But admitting said erroneous inference to be correct, it is no argument for the forcible imposition of the fifth of the revolutionary candidates as under a neutral government he would be assured of a certain and honorable victory. If the nation is with Carranza, as the American delegation claims it is, the nation will elect him without the necessity of taunting his triumph with either fraud or violence or the charge of its being the fruit of foreign intervention and usurpation, which public opinion always make against it. Carranza elected by the nation under a neutral provisional government would command the respect due to the person who incarnates the nation's will, whereas elected under a government supposedly imposed as the result of action of the Washington government, he would always be regarded as a traitor.

"Carranza Certain of Election"

"If things are as the American delegation claims them to be, Carranza is certain of his election and in this case only a matter of form is being discussed, whether he is to be elected at elections held by a rebel provisional government which will exercise its influence against the people to achieve its end, or at elections presided over by a neutral government which will carry them out honestly. Now the government of a people in the front rank of civilization and moral culture cannot assume, for a mere matter of form, the responsibility for the continuation of the slaughter, pillage and atrocities which accompany the present struggle in Mexico, and which in a vain effort has been made to conceal from the public of the United States."

"Carranza Certain of Election"

"The memorandum also refers to two other points which are not yet public property."

Interviewing Mrs. Sunday No Easy Task Reporter Does Marathon Trying for Story

We had a hunch that Mrs. William A. Sunday would be about the most desirable person in the world to interview, especially if we could make her forget it was a regular interview and get her to "just talk." We believe in hunches, so we followed this one. Now, the members of the Sunday party do more in one day than lots of people do in a week, consequently they are about as hard to find as violets on the summit of Pike's Peak. Not impossible, just improbable. So we went to the newspaper files for a schedule. Yes, there it was.

Wednesday, 10 to 10:30 a. m. District 6, Manitou Congregational church. Mrs. W. A. Sunday.
 Bright and early yesterday morning we arose and went to Manitou. Mrs. Sunday arrived late (perhaps we shouldn't tell it for punctuality is a slogan with the Sunday party), so we couldn't see her before the service. However, we waited at the church.

Finally the service ended and Mrs. Sunday came toward the door. We prepared to ask an interview in such a manner that it couldn't be refused. But just as we started to speak, out began to stream the large audience at the prayer meeting. For 10 minutes Mrs. Sunday stood just inside the door shaking hands. Then out she came. We cleared our throat.

Hadn't Time to Talk

"May I talk with you for just 10 minutes?" Mrs. Sunday asked.
 "I really haven't the time," she answered.
 "But this is urgent," we persisted.
 "Well, I'm going over to the livery (pointing across the little canyon) and if you wish you may go along and we'll talk on the way."

Fine! Off we started.
 "Won't you tell us a little about your special sermons to women?" was asked as we dropped into step. "That appears to be one of the most important features of your work."

But luck was against us.
 "Mrs. Sunday, I'm so glad to see you," we heard you a great many times and always wanted to meet you, someone just behind us, exclaimed. And Mrs. Sunday turned to greet the newcomer.

Then we started again. Once, twice, three times it was the same thing over again. Finally we got away.

We skirted a crowd of women crossing the street and conversation necessarily was stopped. Then we started across the library park. Did a regular Marathon, which fortunately was down hill.

Now, you were going to say—
 Mrs. Sunday was going full speed and during the greater part of the time we were panting along trying to keep up the pace. But the one being interviewed was talking. Here is what we got as it shot past us:

Caught on the Fly

These prayer meetings—they're fine—lots of interest—like them—do much good, too—only small crowd—personal work emphasized—people in Manitou like them—pleasure to talk to these people.

By this time we had reached the livery. Out in front, sitting in a buggy with W. O. Brennan, were Billy Sunday and the two boys, Billy, Jr. and Paul.

"Hello," said Billy Sunday.
 For five minutes the Sunday family tried to decide whether it could reach the Manitou Congregational station in three minutes and catch the 11 o'clock car for the summit. Then it decided whether it could make the Manitou trip, return to the Manitou Springs hotel, have lunch, and reach the Manitou train—all in two and one-half hours.

The days had it.
 "So it was decided to call an automobile and return home. Just then along came half a dozen women.

"That's Billy Sunday," one whispered. And all made a rush for the buggy.

"I've heard you lots of times and I've always wanted to meet you," they all said.

More Successful This Time

We grasped the opportunity afforded by the interruption and shot question after question at Mrs. Sunday. We were still determined to get that object of talk became slightly bored, but not once did she show it.

"Work is principally looking after my children and everything," she said, as we edged in between the crowd and Mrs. Sunday to ward off further interruption for the time being at least.

"For instance, I help Mr. Sunday (for the first time, she didn't call him "Papa") select his sermons. You know that is a difficult task. He may decide to preach one sermon, then when he arrives at the tabernacle, find a crowd which demands an entirely different type of talk. So he must change. I help him decide this. And, by the way, that is why we cause nervousness so much trouble about the sermons."

We agreed that it had to be so, but said we couldn't understand why Mr. Sunday did not know a half-day before just what sermon he would use. We could do the extra work required when such a good reason was advanced, good reasons usually are scarce.

"What's Mr. Sunday going to do when you leave?" we ventured to query. But someone had edged past us in a moment of unwelcomefulness and our interview, if it might be called such, was at an end.

MRS. WILLIAM A. SUNDAY

everything will go along almost as smoothly as if she were here.

And by the way, the hunch about Mrs. Sunday proved correct. It would be hard to imagine a more entertaining person to talk to, even under difficulties.

FOLLOWING THE SUNDAY PARTY

"Nothing could attest more emphatically the popularity of Billy Sunday than the eagerness of the crowds to secure choice seats. Hardly is the afternoon service over before people begin filling into the tabernacle to secure the front seats for the evening service.

Last Sunday many took their lunches, going in the morning intending to remain until after the night sermon. Because of an order of the health department, no one is permitted to spread a lunch in the tabernacle.

Twice Billy Sunday was forced to postpone his trip to the summit of Mount Manitou, but yesterday afternoon he made the ascent, going via the Scenic Incline railroad. Accompanying Mr. Sunday were the Rev. and Mrs. L. K. Peacock and their daughter and L. F. Law of this city.

Saturday afternoon a special service will be held for children. The sermon, however, will be of interest to everybody. Mr. Sunday has arranged many unique features for the service and surprises galore are in store for the children who attend.

Mrs. William Asher met the girls at the Colorado Springs Laundry yesterday noon. The meeting was as successful as the one the day before at the Elite laundry.

"Tonight we are to give a penny for each year of our life," Billy Sunday said last night just before asking the women to take a collection. Then he remarked that tomorrow night the Lord and would extend to the body.

"Guess we better make the collection every night," he laughed. "The bloods live there, don't they?"

Meetings for women only will be held next Sunday afternoon in Colorado Springs and Manitou. Miss Frances Miller will address the Manitou women at the Manitou Congregational church, while Mrs. William Asher will talk to the women in this city at the First M. E. church. Both meetings will begin promptly at 2 o'clock.

H. A. Rodeheaver met with shopmen at the Colorado Midland railroad shops in Colorado City yesterday noon. The meeting was one of the first of the noon-day shop meetings to be held during the campaign.

The first prayer at the service last night was given by the pastor of a local Swedish church, who spoke in his native tongue. Afterward Rodeheaver explained that three Swedish churches in Colorado Springs are supporting the campaign.

"And whenever the Swedish churches get behind a revival you're got good, faithful people working with you," he said. "Maybe some of you didn't understand the prayer just said, but God did."

After marching in with the south side delegation, the Salvation Army band took a position in the choir loft and played several pieces last night. B. D. Ackley assisted in one selection by playing an auto part on the piano, and created much amusement for the moment for those in the choir loft by starting to repeat a refrain which the band did not repeat.

MORE THAN 800 GIRLS AND BUSINESS WOMEN PRESENT AT FIRST OF CHURCH MEETINGS

Supper Served to Big Crowd and Talks Made by Miss Miller and Mrs. Asher

All feelings of class between working girls and business women of all stations is to entirely disappear in Colorado Springs, if the atmosphere of comradeship emanating from Miss Frances Miller and Mrs. William Asher of the Billy Sunday party is sufficiently absorbed. More than 800 business women came into contact with the spirit of these two women at the Presbyterian church last evening, where a dinner was served by them and talks and music followed. The meeting was a rousing one and the women who do the work of the city—in office, shop and store, sang and touched shoulders and became better acquainted. After the meeting at the church, the majority of the crowd went in a body to the tabernacle, where a section of seats had been reserved for them to hear the special sermon by Billy Sunday on "The Timid Woman."

The gathering was notable in more ways than one. Many of the girls from the laundries, department stores and other institutions employing great numbers, came in groups and sat together. In several instances, the groups were some distinguishing bit of ribbon or a flower to set them off from the others. During the first of the meeting each group stood up and recited itself. Brown's Business college was represented by a large delegation, which was bedecked in the school colors, and arose and gave their college yell with as much enthusiasm and volume as a bunch of college roots, urging the star halfback on a red-line run across the gridiron.

Singing One of Features

The singing was spirited, too, and led by Mrs. William Asher, the women filled the auditorium of the church with music inspiring in quality. The talking was done by Miss Miller, and she told of the plans for the meetings to be held during the Billy Sunday campaign.

Noon meetings are to be held for business women every week from 11:30 to 1:30 o'clock. Lunch will be served in the basement dining rooms of the church, and the auditorium will be given over to a continuous song and religious service. On special nights sessions will be reserved at the big tabernacle for "business women only," at 6 o'clock. Each woman who attends a meeting will receive a ticket admitting her to these reserved sections. Those who do not attend the meetings at the church may obtain tickets from committee women in the stores. The lesson for the first meeting today will be from John 15.

One of the best features of the church meeting was the acquaintance established between the women. Class feeling seemingly melted and the individuals of the crowd became one. One evidence of the good feeling and spirit of cooperation present in the assembly was the alacrity with which every hat came off at the faintest suggestion that things would be more comfortable that way. There were no men present, however, so disgruntled looks were not considered.

Girls Are for Miss Miller

Miss Miller won her audience immediately. She talked in a friendly, confidence-inspiring manner, accompanied by a smile and with a sincerity that gripped. She told of the wonderful success attending the noon meetings for business women in other cities where she Billy Sunday campaign has worked. She mentioned the lasting effect they had had in establishing prayer clubs and prayer meetings in large department stores; the spirit of unity engendered among the girls and women and their willingness to help one another in difficulties demanding the counsel of women.

At Pittsburgh more than 10,000 business women attended the noon meetings and reports from that city, according to Miss Miller, are that prayer meetings are still being held in many of the large department stores at regular intervals.

Judging from the attendance last night the meetings for business women in Colorado Springs will be a success. In all, there are about 1,400 working women in this city, and more than a third of the total number were present at the meeting. This indicates a large attendance during the coming weeks, say the Sunday workers, who have much experience upon which to base their statements.

CHURCH CONVERTED INTO REAL BABY-LAND WHILE PARENTS ATTEND SUNDAY MEETINGS

Nursery Proves Interesting Sidelight of Campaign; Kiddies Cry When Taken Away

"Mama's gone to have a talk with God, and I'm to be a little angel while she's gone."

This was the explanation given by a small boy last evening for his presence at the Billy Sunday nursery in the basement of the First Methodist church. While fond parents are listening to the sermons of the baseball evangelist at the tabernacle, their small offsprings are making a merry dip in the church basement under the care of patient and impatient nurses. The nursery was established to take care of the children and thus do away with the noise of crying and restless babies at the tabernacle services.

In the room, there the little ones play there are toys, cribs, kind-hearted nurses and everything to insure their comfort and happiness. The number being cared for at one time ranges from 2 to 40 and the ages of the small visitors run from six months to six years. At times an older sister or brother accompany the little ones to assist in their care or to insure against stage fright.

It's a big nursery, the church room is a regular little baby-land. The child in all moods may be seen there and home training methods, indicated by the actions of the babies, are legion. Every type of tot from the good little fairy to the spoiled one who must have everything is there. But each child receives kind and considerate attention no matter what its disposition.

At night the nursery is left to the care of the nurses who are on duty. All three of the little white beds in the nursery were occupied by a dozen locks of brown hair. On little red chairs around the room tiny boys of quiet disposition sat and contemplated the antics of the more active or younger babies. Here one lad was winding a spring-top, there some little girls were dressing a doll, and in another spot a nurse was coaxing a badly bent engine from an avaricious child in order to bestow the precious article upon another child who cried that his turn was next.

"We have entertained nearly 400 of the kiddies since the nursery opened," said Mrs. E. C. Ross, superintendent of the nursery, to a reporter last night. "All our nurses are volunteer workers."

Autos Are Needed for Mother's Day

Only two people in the Pike's Peak region have offered to donate their automobiles tomorrow afternoon to take the aged to and from the Billy Sunday service, which will be for mothers. A long list of people who can and will attend if they are provided with a conveyance to take them has been furnished. Unless machines are secured many mothers will be forced to miss this special service.

Secretary E. B. Simmons of the Y. M. C. A. has charge of this work. He has again requested that everyone who has a machine and can possibly spare it for a few hours tomorrow afternoon call him at the association building, Main 1334. The machines are wanted at 1 o'clock in the afternoon and probably will be in use but two or two and one-half hours.

those will be reserved at the big tabernacle for "business women only," at 6 o'clock. Each woman who attends a meeting will receive a ticket admitting her to these reserved sections. Get Rid of Your Rheumatism

Now is the time to get rid of your rheumatism. You can do it if you apply Chamberlain's Liniment. W. A. Lockhart, Homer City, N. Y., writes, "Last spring I suffered from rheumatism with terrible pain in my arms and shoulders. I got a bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment and the first application relieved me. By using one bottle of it I was entirely cured." For sale by all druggists.

Another Job for Bryan.
 A new problem for American diplomacy was injected into the situation today when it became known that Rear Admiral Howard, commanding the American squadron in Pacific Mexico, was being taken aboard his vessel at Tehuacan, Chihuahua, by revolutionaries who sought safety when their vessel, the Tampico, was sunk by the federal gunboat Guierres.

As it would be impracticable to keep these prisoners long aboard the American warships, they probably would be brought to the United States and interned. It was pointed out that to succor the wounded or to rescue the drowning and then put them ashore to rejoin their rebel commands would be a clear violation of neutrality.

these, only two reels which it is thought escaped the fire have not been away from this city long enough to have reached the studios. The films destroyed include "The Dreamer," the biggest picture produced here. They also include all the films made by Fielding's party in the last six months. The most important of these are "The Battle of Gettysburg," a five-reel comedy produced at Galveston, Tex., at a cost of about $60,000, and "The Horror of War," a drama, produced at Las Vegas, N. M. "The Battle of Gettysburg" was to have been released in the near future. A force of 10,000 troops played an important part in the picture. The vault was used for storing both "negatives" and "positives"—the films made by the actors and the films prepared for use in the moving picture houses—and was used for the films sent in by the road companies, as well as those made at the Philadelphia studio. The Lubin people at present have 20 reels of completed pictures.

Some of the Fielding heads, so that the loss of films from this source alone is enormous. Many of the films probably can never be duplicated. The Lubin company has announced that there will be no delay in business, however, as contracts will be filled with releases from films now being manufactured.

in uninterrupted communication with Consul George C. Carothers, who had been in personal conference with General Villa at Torreon. Secretary Bryan would not divulge any of Mr. Carothers' messages, but the secretary continued in an optimistic frame of mind as to the Mexican situation.

Rafael Zubaran and Luis Cabrera, the Constitutionalist representatives in Washington, who conferred yesterday at Buffalo with the American commissioners to the mediation conference, returned here early today and maintained silence both as to their mission and concerning the Villa-Carranza break. It was reported, however, that they had been asked particularly about the qualifications of Gen. Felipe Angeles for the presidential presidency of Mexico.

It also was reported that when the mediators resume their conference with the Huerta delegates and the representatives from the United States on Friday that General Angeles' name will be submitted to head the government proposed to succeed Huerta pending an election. General Villa is declared to be in sympathy with this move and some officials in Washington believe that an armistice in the Mexican revolution might be effected should Huerta delegates at Niagara Falls accept.

GLASS OF SALTS CLEANS KIDNEYS

IF YOUR BACK HURTS OR STAGS, DRINK BOWTHER'S YOD, DRINK LOTS OF WATER

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and brocked to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that irritate the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water you can't take too much; also get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Yod Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithium and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Yod Salts is non-toxic, cannot be pure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

KEEPING FREE FROM SUSPICION

THESE are the days when even United States senators must be as Caesar's wife should be. Even so little a thing as a clerk copying an official paper a letter from a mining expert may cause a senator chagrin and explanations. It is hard on the senators with old-time instincts and traditions of the time when they regarded the upper body as a rich man's club and senatorial courtesy went the length of permitting the most intolerable things.

But it is better for the country that a conscience has been awakened. "Old men for counsel, young men for war" was an excellent sentiment, so long as there was war and the old men were not trying to play at the game of being young men. Elder statesmen with money making instincts may not be so valuable after all. Foreigners criticize us for the manner in which newspapers pry into private affairs in this country, but there are two sides to that, as there are to everything else. One of the things on the reverse side is the white light of publicity that beats upon public men and keeps them from many petty grafts.

In England and in Germany recently there have been some terrible scandals exposed by the press and proved true after investigations, but the only persons who suffered thereby have been the newspaper publishers who dared to expose them. The verdict appeared to be that a public man has a license to do as he pleases, and that if he embezzles funds of a campaign committee and loses them in private speculation, the newspapers which make the affair notorious are invading private rights.

It is exceedingly easy for a public man to slip into petty forms of grafting—simple things in themselves, which show exceedingly ugly when presented in cold type. An automobile for office business may be necessary for the man, but when one slips the family in for a Sunday joyride, and eats up several dollars' worth of gasoline, that the public pays for, it amounts to taking a perquisite. It is nice for an assistant secretary of some department to give a dinner with all the pomp and ceremony that he can, but when he asks clerks under government pay to act as butlers for the occasion he is exhibiting a tendency to graft that may have far-reaching results.

The Caesar's wife attitude of being above suspicion is a good thing in a public functionary, and the press is his monitor.

JOKES IN MEN'S CLOTHING

NEW YORK CITY frequently is called the most provincial place in the nation. And it may be true in the sense that there are a larger number of people living there who know absolutely nothing about the rest of the country than anywhere else. The extreme conservatism of men in the big city was never more picturesquely illustrated than in the need for a society organizing for the purpose of telling New York that it is to be good form hereafter to wear white clothes in summer time if they want to.

Out in the wild and woolly regions west of Jersey City a man wears just about what pleases him, and nobody laughs. If he wears, for instance, a soft hat down Broadway he gets the laugh. They know instinctively that he never has been in New York before, and that is a joke. Why it is a joke never to have seen New York until that particular moment more than it is never to have seen Jerusalem or Rome or Cork where heaps of the New Yorkers originated is not quite clear.

Tyranny of custom is shown in New York in the matter of hats after the summer days are over. No man wears anything but a stiff hat of the variety known as derby. It may be of the vintage of 1860, and look like a Sam Bernard stage prop, but it is a derby. You may wear the most beautiful and costly soft black hat of the Fedora type, or a Stetson of the western soft, light-colored type, which not one New Yorker in a hundred can afford, but they hail you from Keokuk, Oshkosh or Klamath Falls. You may know your "little old New York" better than one out of every ten thousand who passes you, but with any such hat on your head you are a joke.

Ever since the French revolution men have been afraid to dress themselves fancifully, which may be very well in an utilitarian age. At first it was real fear of the ax. Now it has crystallized into a worse fear the dread of being laughed at and it is no longer fantastic dress that men hesitate to wear. They actually are afraid to make themselves comfortable. The society for promotion of white duck trousers is to be commended. Mark Twain was its prophet, for he first had the courage, and for once he was not joking.

WHEN THE FOG LOWERS

THREE times in the last few weeks great ocean ships have come into collision, and in one of these events the loss of life has been one of the largest in the history of the world. In these modern days the most frightful thing that comes to those who "go down to the sea in ships" is fog.

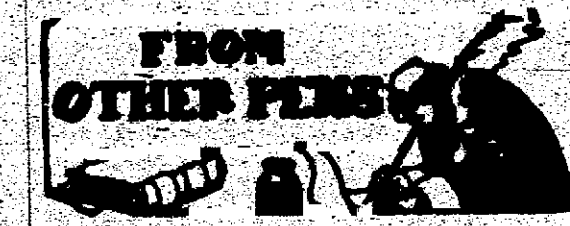

Any sailor prefers battle with a storm on the open sea to drifting in a fog. It was bad enough in the old sailing days when ships could not sound fog whistles, but now it is a frightful thing to know that a few feet away may be a great power boat bearing down through the gloom with express train speed which will cut your own boat in two.

Various inventions have been made to lessen danger in the fog, but they evidently are not entirely successful. The government may not be able to do anything in regard to stopping vessels out at sea whose captains may desire to proceed, but it can stop them in the harbors and at the three-mile limit. It might entail a loss in time, but all vessels can be ordered to come to anchor during fog in the harbors.

Villa has turned on his revolutionary mate and taken charge in the north, just as most people thought he might do when the time came. In the meanwhile, the little caldron of peace boils and bubbles merrily at Niagara Falls, with William J. B. sitting on the valve, wearing his most pleasing Chautauquan smile. What if it happens that he and Villa had this little affair understood between them all the time?

A real blown-in-the-bottle optimist would cheerfully smile and remark that this sort of alternating rain and warmth is mighty good for growing weeds. Such an optimist has no garden in his backyard. It is astonishing how many seeds old Mother Nature has concealed in her lap, some of them no doubt buried there for years awaiting a rainy season like this to germinate.

All the advertising matter put out for the circus which is to show here today proclaims "Buffalo Bill, Himself." We arise to inquire what the genial Colonel would be like without himself.

ADMIRAL MAYO

From the Washington Star.
 "The Army and Navy Secretary.
 Three cheers for the Red, White and Blue."

Some criticism is being passed on Admiral Mayo. Why did he pick up that little thing at Tampico? Why not have ignored it? Or, holding it, why have pressed matters to the point he did? Why a formal salute to the flag? Why was not the excuse offered by the Mexican officer sufficient?

Here is the same spirit which flared up at the time of our trouble in the Philippines. Admiral Dewey was lectured for not sailing away as soon as he had destroyed the Spanish fleet. General Smith, who was ashore dealing with savages on the war-path, was contemptuously nicknamed "Hell-roarin' Jake" because he was fighting the devil with fire.

All that obituary books say of him and what today: Admiral Dewey's record at Manila partakes of seamanship and diplomacy, and the blend is inspiring. He did the right thing, at the right time, in the right way.

As for General Smith, his task, though less conspicuous, was of the hardest. The field of action was difficult, the foe had no code of civilized procedure, and it was imperative to do things swiftly and surely. War in such circumstances was necessarily hell, red hot, and he made it so. He did not receive just treatment here at home. But he rendered good service to the country at a time when she sorely needed it.

Admiral Mayo is a trained sailor, and knows his trade. He did not order himself to Tampico. He was not seeking an opportunity to fire his guns. His orders had come through the proper channels, and he was executing them in the proper way and in a pacific spirit.

Suddenly a thing happened which called for firm attention, and he gave it the attention and interpretation of his profession. He knew what was proper, and he demanded no more of the offenders. And after demanding he insisted on his demand.

The Mexicans are not savages, and our relations to that country are not as were our relations to the Philippines. But some rough work is ahead of us, and we are sending trained and competent men to do it. Let them have the benefit of every doubt. Let them have the business both sailors and soldiers, they are none the less citizens because in uniform, and they have the honor and welfare of this country as much to heart as those whose work is here at home, where no danger threatens and no complications distract.

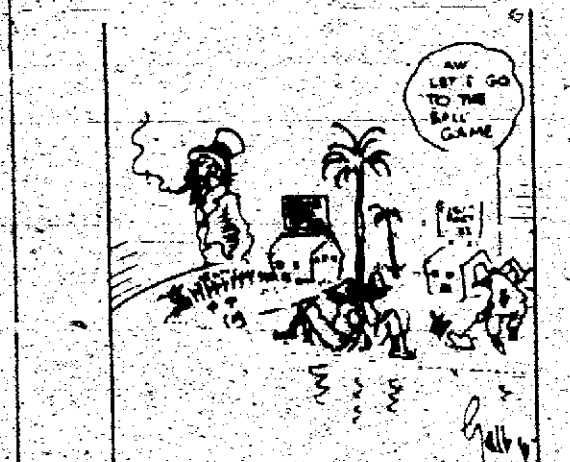

CUBA

BY GEORGE FITCH
 Author of "At Odds Old Havana"

Cuba is a long lean island lying in the back yard of the United States, south of Florida. It is a republic, subject to good behavior, but its constitution guarantees it the privilege of being spanked by this country whenever it tries to Mexicanize itself.

Cuba is about 150 miles long and from 100 to 200 miles wide. It is low and sandy, with breaking out of small mountains in spots, and has a climate that would grow lemons on a hardwood floor. Birds, bees, bugs, flowers, trees and malaria are as thick in Cuba that man has to fight for room for himself. However, there are no wild beasts to speak of since Weyler and his hired help left about 15 years ago, when General Shafter and Colonel Gorham of the United States army exterminated both the Spanish government and the yellow fever bearing mosquito. "Malaria" was the most fatal disease in Cuba, and since their disappearance the population has increased so rapidly that Cuba now has more people than Iowa and almost as many as Chicago.

"its constitution guarantees it the privilege of being spanked by this country whenever it tries to Mexicanize itself."

Cuba is so hot that clothes are worn merely for style. The banana flourishes there and the poor man harvests five crops of pineapples a year. But what has made Cuba rich is her sugar and tobacco. Cuba produces half the cane sugar of the world and almost all of the good cigars. The United States takes almost all of the sugar, but a few of the cigars escape to Europe, where they can be found after a very painful search by the American tourist.

Cuba was discovered by Columbus in 1492 and he supposed it to be part of the main land. It was very unkind to Cuba that this was not the case, as it enabled Spain to hold the island for more than 400 years. As often as a new crop of Cuban patriots could be grown, the island revolted; but it had very little success until the Maine was blown up in Havana harbor. The explosion was the greatest on record. It blew the Spanish out of the western hemisphere and made Cuba a republic.

Since then, Cuba has been very prosperous. It has a fine modern constitution which has earned how to operate after one failure, when W. J. B. had to go down and anger the republic for a short time. The United States has set by the elbow of the Cuban government for about five years in all. In those five years yellow fever was abolished, the ends of the island were connected by railroad, the school attendance was tripled, good roads were built and several thousand tons of dirt were dug out of Havana and Santiago. And yet, when the United States tried to intervene in Mexico some of the Mexicans objected.

Cuba is supposed to be a light brown republic, but this is not the case. More than half the population are native born, white Cubans and another quarter are Spanish and other whites. But the negro is as good as the white man in Cuba and votes with him side by side. This ought to attract an enormous immigration from the southern states, and it would if Cuba was astute enough to raise more chickens and watermelons.

What My Letter Friends Say

BY RUTH CAMERON

I wish I had space enough to publish all the interesting letters my reader friends write me. But even if that is out of the question, I'm going to give you extracts from two or three of them today.

In answer to my article on profanity a letter friend writes me a beautiful letter, saying that he has much to say to break himself of the habit. He adds something about habits which is decidedly worth passing on.

We make our habits through thoughts, and our habits make us what we are. I got the habit of swearing at a young age by not realizing the degradation of it. I was told that if I swore I would get a whipping. I thought that was the only thing I considered was in the way of my swearing, with the other boys. I found I could swear anywhere but in the presence of my parents and not get whipped. So I became a professional and my parents never knew it until I was a full-grown young man.

I found that my teaching was wrong, so I took a different course with my children. I taught them the degrading part of it, and I never told them they mustn't do anything because I would whip them, but because it was wrong in itself, and they haven't got one bad habit that I know of.

The best part of this letter is that it is apparently from a man of no great education (it is corrected the orthography and spelling). And yet in spite of lack of education he is evidently a deep thinker. Three cheers are due to him. I say: He is the kind of man America needs.

In the kind of man America needs. In which thoughts of distant friends often slip into our minds without any apparent cause. Apropos of this talk, a letter friend sends in the following comment:

"Some months ago I chanced to read one of your 'Chats' which rather impressed me, as it touched on a subject I have often sought to have explained, but without success. If I recall correctly, you dwelt on the inability to account for alien thoughts, or memory pictures, flashing through our brain."

"Thinking that it may interest you, I am sending you a copy of a little poem taken from an issue of the Messenger of Peace, which struck me as a new way to deal with these 'thought waves.'"

The poem reads:
 "Pray One for Another."
 (James, 5:16)
 "I cannot tell why there should come to me
 A thought of someone miles and miles away.
 In swift insistence on the memory,
 Unless a need there be that I should pray."

"Too hurried off we are to spare the thought.
 For days together, of some friends away:
 Perhaps God does it for us, and we ought
 To read his signal as a call to pray."

"Perhaps, just then, my friend has fiercer fight
 And more appalling weakness, and I pray
 Of courage, darkness, some lost prayer, I pray.
 And so in ease he needs my prayer, I pray."

"Friend, do the same for me. If I intrude
 Unasked upon you, on some crowded day,
 Give me a moment's prayer as an interlude.
 Be very sure I need it, therefore pray."
 "Marianne Farnham."

The Mexican Situation

MORTIFIED MEDIATORS

From the Boston Evening Transcript.
 "First catch your hare" is a time-honored culinary maxim. Diplomatically its paraphrase, "First get your agreement to a provisional government accepted before you decide on the method of transfer of authority, applies to the compromise reached by the American and Mexican delegates to the peace conference. We are told that Justice Lamar says: 'The method of effecting the transfer of authority in Mexico, the first plank in the plan of pacification, has been agreed to,' then the dispatch carrying his statement adds that the view of the mediators is less optimistic than his.

A wide difference between the mediators and the American and Mexican delegations may naturally arise, for the mediators as diplomatic representatives of Argentina, Brazil and Chile object to being deemed negligible individuals. They gathered at Niagara Falls to draw up a plan for a provisional government which should be acceptable to all Mexican parties and whose composition should reflect a spirit of tranquility and reconciliation. They find that if they do not take part in a scheme to promote Carranza to the presidency, they are ignored. Veteran diplomats, they are not minded to play the parts of subsidiaries to Secretary Bryan. They have their reputations to maintain in their own countries and the prestige of their governments to uphold.

Trained observers of the Latin-American temperament, they realize that there is a vast difference between setting up a one-sided provisional government and keeping it going, or even having it temporarily accepted. Probably it is not at this late stage of the conference that it dawns upon the mediators that they are the victims of the intrigues of our government to supersede Huerta by Carranza. Carranza is simply the covert for Villa. The president has made it plain from the start that he deems the "Constitutionalists" the informal allies of the United States, to be aided at whatever sacrifice of consistency and national respect. What are crimes in Huerta sufficient to justify his "elimination" are but peccadilloes in Villa. Pressure is brought to bear against the one and in favor of the other.

The mediators at Niagara Falls are not children; neither are they ducks. They must have seen and sensed the humiliation which our state department has sought to prepare for them as representatives of three South American powers anxious to make the settlement of the Mexican crisis a Pan-American matter. Pan-American settlement should be, but if our government believes that having put Carranza in Huerta's chair its responsibility will be ended, it is cherishing a delusion. It will then have to back up its choice against a discontented Mexico, and, should a discontented Europe, for our state department, between its double dealing and its blundering, has assured us of a crop of international difficulties, in sequel to any "solution" of the Mexican problem we may be able to effect. Humiliating as the course of the administration has been, the full extent of that humiliation will not be reached when we force Villa and his man Carranza into power, for we may find ourselves confronted with the demand of other nations that we guarantee other claims against the bandit we have promoted.

AMERICANS ALL

From the Denver Times.
 Eastern exchanges announce that some of their readers are engaged in a controversy as to whether the first United States sailor or marine to meet death at Vera Cruz was a Catholic or a Protestant. A Jew of a Gentle. In the activity attendant upon landing at Vera Cruz, split-second watches were not used, and the question probably never will be authentically answered. For that matter, we hope it is not. Persons who would engage in a controversy over such a detail of heroism are scarcely worthy of the courtesy of notice or mention in newspapers.

Those men who did their duty at Vera Cruz were Americans, and the government of the United States cares nothing for their religious beliefs. Whether they were Protestants or Catholics, Jews or Gentiles, Atheists, Agnostics or Pantheists, does not interest beside the fact that they were men of the stock of many nations, gathered together under the flag which is symbol of progress, humanitarianism and of political and religious freedom.

NO HUERTA PRESIDENT

From the Baltimore Sun.
 We imagine neither the mediators nor the Mexican delegates will long insist on Huerta's being permitted to name his successor, even though that successor be only for temporary purposes. Such a proposition is so clearly in conflict with our whole attitude toward Carranza that it must be abandoned. Huerta is in no position to dictate terms, and the United States cannot allow him to do so.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans

Quail is excellent to hygiene, sanitation, and prevention of disease, if eaten in moderation. It is not a staple food, but it is a most valuable addition to the diet. It is not a staple food, but it is a most valuable addition to the diet. It is not a staple food, but it is a most valuable addition to the diet.

(C. I. Q. 1914: By The Tribune Co. N.Y.)

SELECTION OF BABY FOOD

Many thousand women cannot get along with milk to keep the babies supplied with milk. They have no mother's milk. They cannot do the best thing; they cannot do the next best thing; they must choose further down the line.

To help this large number of mothers much investigation has been going on in recent years. Conclusions are far from being final, but they are pointing in certain directions.

A baby food must contain milk in some form. The investigations point definitely that way. A recent study of four foods made by research workers at the University of Illinois, showed this quite well. They fed mice on Horlick's malted milk, and Nestle's food, which contain dried milk, and with two other foods which contain no milk.

They observed the mice as to whether they kept up their weight, grew properly, and bore young capable in turn of bearing healthy young. Or, to put it another way, they would divide a batch of young mice into two groups. One group was fed on ordinary food, the other on ordinary food. The number and condition of the third generation were counted and observed.

As the second generation approached maturity the test young were divided into two groups. One was fed on the test food, the other on ordinary food. The number and condition of the third generation were counted and observed.

In this way the research workers determined whether the test food promoted the breeding of sound progeny, with sufficient vitality to grow up and themselves produce sound progeny.

The milk foods stood the test. The foods in the manufacture of which no milk is used did not.

The teaching of this experiment is that where a mother is selecting a food for her nursing baby, she should read the label carefully and select one made wholly or nearly from milk. This made of the use of milk in the manufacture of the food. If the food must be mixed with milk at the time of use it has no advantage over the use of milk.

A baby food which is a dry powder will keep better than one that is liquid or nearly so. After a can of evaporated milk is opened it spoils rapidly; it is not safe, therefore, to use evaporated milk unless it can be kept as cool as tap water will keep it. It must be kept clean. After a can of condensed milk is opened it spoils slowly. It must be kept cool and clean. A dry powdered food is much easier to keep.

REPLY TO S.

You say your physicians find your organs sound. Then you are the victim of bad habits, including the worst of all, the habit of sitting on the toilet. It is difficult for a man to live an active, outdoor life until 40 and then suddenly change to close office work with much mental strain. A man with excellent police can be kept as cool as tap water will keep it. It must be kept clean. After a can of condensed milk is opened it spoils slowly. It must be kept cool and clean. A dry powdered food is much easier to keep.

You must either change your employment or else change your customs. You must make a place in the day open air, preferably for golf or some other form of play. You must eat less food in all probability. You must drink more water, much more. You must get your bowels regulated through your diet.

You must get better mental habits. You must work out your own salvation.

HOW TO GET LOOKS.

S. E. writes: "where can I get the goods?"

following books, and at what price: Cadell's "Physiology of Fat and Food," Walton's "Calm Yourself," Why Worry? and Bridger's "Minds in Distress."

REPLY.
 If your bookshelf does not have publishers' catalog, let him order them by title and author from his wholesaler. Books are catalogued so that any book is printed and some out of print can be located. All wholesalers and the larger retailers have such catalogs.

RHEUMATOID ARTHRITIS.
 L. X. writes: "Is there any prevention or cure for finger joints that are swelling and growing out of shape?"

REPLY.
 The tendency at the present time to change all forms of rheumatoid arthritis to subinfection. The bacteria are absorbed from the teeth, or the gums around the teeth, the tonsils, the nose, the sinuses of the nose or pus pockets elsewhere in the body, for instance, pus tubes or infected gall bladder. Acting on this, the focus is located. Drainage is done where possible. Cleaning up is done where possible, and culture from the focus are used to make vaccines.

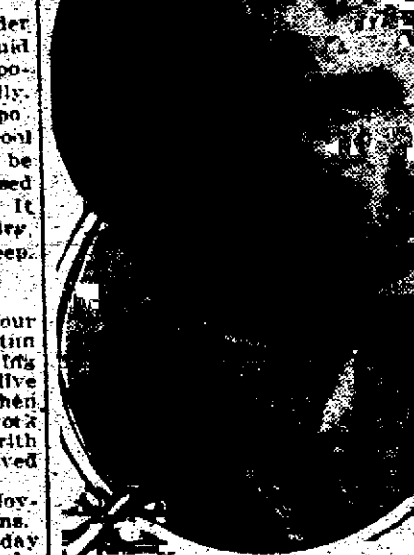

This method of procedure is not hopeless in the gnarling joints of the fingers in people past middle life as in other forms of rheumatoid arthritis. In my opinion, nevertheless, it is the method to try.

MASSAGE AND NEURASTHENIA.
 J. C. F. writes: "With massage or greatly benefited neurasthenia? Will it raise permanently the blood pressure or act harmfully in any way? What is the best single book on nerve control?"

REPLY.
 It will be of assistance. It will not cure. Neurasthenia is a condition of mind. The only cure is a change of mental habits.

2. No.
 Cannot be answered categorically. For some people, "Calm Yourself" is best. Some get more out of books that go more deeply into the subject for instance, "The Human Machine," or "Minds in Distress." Some are more helped by "Physiology of Fat and Food." Still others get more out of the deeper books by Dupuis.

Remember how sore and active you were before you had rheumatism, back ache, swollen, aching joints and stiff, painful muscles? Want to feel that way again? You can—just take Foley's Kidney Pills. They get right at the cause of your pain and misery, put your kidneys in sound healthy condition—make them active and strong. Do it quickly, too—Foley's Kidney Pills begin good work just as soon as you start taking them. Start today, and soon you will again be active and free from pain. Robinson Drug Co. Adv.

News of the Courts

Police Judge Manning yesterday morning fined H. Baker, colored, $10 for disturbance and ordered him committed to jail. He also fined James Griffith and J. E. Purnam $10 each for drunkenness, but ordered that they be released under suspended sentences.

Isadora Schlessinger yesterday filed suit in the district court for divorce from Sam R. Schlessinger, alleging cruelty. He asks the custody of their four-year-old child. The couple were married in Cripple Creek in 1900.

Corned Beef

Sliced thin and served cold is extremely tempting at this season of the year, and besides it doesn't necessitate a hot fire in the kitchen for every meal. You may like our Corned Beef, too, for it is cured in a sugar brine and we use only cuts that are best adapted to cooking. Order a piece this week.

If you have the itch, don't scratch. It does not cure the trouble and makes the skin bleed. Apply BALLARD'S SNOW LINIMENT. Rub it in gently on the affected parts. It relieves itching instantly, and a few applications removes the cause thus performing a permanent cure. Price 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle. Sold by all druggists. Adv.

"TANGO FOOT" A NEW DISEASE

From the New York Evening World:

BERLIN—Doctor Boehme of this city announces that he has discovered a new disease, which he describes in a medical periodical under the name of the "tango foot."

Doctor Boehme says the disease is due to the extraordinary movements of the foot and ankle in executing the tango, maxixe and other new dances. Pains which resemble rheumatism develop in the calf of the leg, the shin and the ankle and increase until they often become agonizing.

High speeds have been attained in transmission by wireless telegraphy. A recent test resulted in sending 145 words a minute. The record for writing on a typewriter is 116 words a minute.

Mr. Robert Dakens

will take private pupils and classes (limited to eight) in all the new Society Dances, by appointment, in the ballroom of the Plaza hotel.
